

Oliver King has over 35 years of experience in industry and academia developing photonic components and systems for defense and telecom applications. He is currently a Program Manager at Northrop Grumman Mission Systems. He has held technical leadership roles for numerous DoW research programs exploring photonics enabled sensing systems. He has BS and MS degrees in Optical Engineering from the University of Rochester. He has coauthored 27 patents related to photonic devices and materials.